These parties must limit their use of the information to the purpose for which it was provided. The normal business requirement for this form of sharing is that you first have signed an agreement to let us provide this information to these other persons or firms, in order for them to provide you with a service you seek.

Where required by law or regulation. Examples include responses to a subpoena, court order or regulatory demand.

As authorized by you. You may direct our firm, for example, to send account statements or other account information to a third party.

CONFIDENTIALITY AND SECURITY. Our firm restricts access to information about you to itself and authorized agents who need to know that information in order to provide products or services to you. We maintain physical, electronic and procedural safeguards to maintain the confidentiality of your information.
